Helping children to get on with each other.

1. Notice when it is going well.

"I like the way you two are playing, I can see you are sharing."

2. Show them ways of sorting things without shouting or hitting.

Make special time to play turn taking games or simple board games such as Snakes and Ladders. Or you can even make your own.

3. Say aloud what each child wants but avoid taking sides.

"So Jim, you want the pens to do your homework and Josh, you want to finish your drawing. Hmm I wonder how we could think of a way to sort this one out?"

4. Avoid saying things that set children against each other.

"Your sister can always get in on time. Why can't you?"

5. Instead try

"I/We know that you are late lets have a chat about it."

6. Make every child feel special.

"I am very proud of how you sorted things out with your brother."
